Review of the film Schindler's list

Schindler's List is a 1993 American epic historical drama film directed and produced by Steven Spielberg and wrote script was by Steven Zaillian. It is based on the 1982 novel Schindler's Ark by the Australian novelist Thomas Keneally. It was premiered on 13 November 1993 in Washington D.C and on December 15, 1993 in the United States. The film lasts 195 minutes and it was distributed by Universal Pictures. It Stars Liam Neeson as Schindler, Ralph Fiennes as SS officer Amon Göth, and Ben Kingsley as Schindler's Jewish accountant Itzhak Stern.

This film takes us into the Second World War. The movie tells us the story of Oskar Schindler, a rich man who belongs to the Nazi part. Little by little he becomes aware of the problems in the world and ends up saving more than a thousand Jews, as they are hired to work in his arms factory.

No wonder Schindler's list won an Oscar because it has lots of notable things. The thespian make a powerful performance because they convey a feeling of melancholy and they manage to make the audience think and care about all the people that suffered in the Second World War. In a lot of scenes, the music has a very important role because it creates a poignant mood that grips you. The music gets under your skin and is going to be forever with you. Spielberg considers that the symbol of life is colour. That's why he decided to represent the film in black-and-white, because Spielberg considers that the Holocaust has to be without colour. A peerless scene is when the girl in red appears, it's the only time during this three hours' film that appears a pinch of colour. The coat of the girl is red because it represents blood and all the victims that endured the Holocaust.

We think that this movie is a must-see and everyone should watch it at least once in their lives. It's important to know about the past and all the things that happened throughout history and be conscious of that. This movie is an homage to all the people that suffered and died in concentration and extermination camps. We can't forget this historical moment and we can't repeat it. We recommend this film especially to those who are interested in the Holocaust and wars but, as we said before, everyone should see it because it's a worthwhile watch. Breathtaking, absorbing, thought-provoking, melancholic... All those feelings are present during this movie. It's a film that will change the way you think about the past. Each one of us think that it was hard and that's all, but when you watch all those scenes something stirs inside you.
